Nursing wing has bare floors

By Tom McMillen

Mr. Rosenthal, Cornell College's Dean of Campus Affairs and Director of Student Activities, said the new nursing complex at Cornell had no finished exterior before Christmas for winter classes.

"It could take months to get the roof up so it would be open down the road," said McMillen, who remained silent.

McMillen said the construction delays and cost increases will have continuing financial results until next year for the college. Construction and the renovation will have to wait until the construction of the new residence hall.

The absence of these new accommodations will affect the majority of the building's residents and "this may eventually cost us $100,000 per month," McMillen said.

Rosenthal, several years involved in residence hall and dormitory life, said the lack of accommodations may present problems of its own.

Doon campus may sell daily newspapers soon

By Cheryl Bryant

While major daily newspapers can be purchased on the campus, Doon's local student-run daily newspaper has not yet established its role on campus. However, the Doon News has been forced to fold its paper due to the lack of funds.

According to Mrs. Marlene Stoen, director of physical education at the college, the Doon News has folded because it has been unable to keep up with the cost, but was considered to be a good paper.

In Mr. Rosenthal, from Cornell College, McMillen said the newspaper already has permission from the college to publish a newspaper, and expects to receive it by the fall term. Rosenthal also suggested that Cornell's other two papers, the Cornellian and Cornell and McMillen, Bill Ward and Charles C. McMillen, will be the main representatives for students. McMillen said he assumed a third of participants are now in the University of Waterloo, so the Doon News will be able to continue to publish its newspaper.

Students are encouraged to contact the Doon News editor, Cheryl Bryant, for more information.

Two representatives from the Doon News, Marlene Stoen and Bill Ward, are currently working on the Doon News to establish a local newspaper distribution before they move back to the U.S.

Students who are involved in a school newspaper, such as the Times, are encouraged to do so. The Times has had its edition of the Cornellian since last year and now receives money from the sale of its weekly issue. The paper has now moved to prevent circulation.

Whether the Doon is a day or night publication is still unknown. The Doon News and Bill Ward believe it should be changed and placed down with other schools in order to avoid being confused.

Students need to know in advance if their school newspaper will be changed, which will affect the amount of time available for the school newspaper to be published. Students will be asked to provide a copy of the newspaper to the Doon News and Bill Ward.

Woodworking centre on target

By Angelo Martelli

Construction of the Doonwood Woodworking Centre at Cornell College is on target, according to Doonwood's director of operations, Mr. John Tibbits.

The new woodworking centre is to be completed by the spring of 1988 to house a demonstration area, the new centre of the campus. The high quality facility will serve as a focal point for students and prospective clients who will visit the school for technical woodworkings.

"The centre is to be used as a base for Doonwood's educational activities," Tibbits said.

Construction is progressing, averaging $100,000 per month, and will continue until the end of October. The centre will have a large working area and space for 10 students at a time.

$100,000 has been allocated to the project and the remaining $100,000 will come from Doonwood's own resources.

The building is estimated to be completed in October, 1988, and will be open to the public in January, 1989. Tibbits said the Doonwood Woodworking Centre will be a focal point for Doonwood's educational activities.

Tour of Africa an eye-opener for counsellor

By Cheryl Grayson

Thousands of miles and experiences, counsellor says, will never compare to the 10-week tour of Africa she recently took with three counsellors. Carol Grayson who accompanied a three-month summer tour of Africa.

Grayson is a guidance counsellor who left Toronto August 14 for a 10-week study in Africa spending the first six weeks there. Together with three other members of the Association of Canadian Counsellors, Carol left last Saturday for the capital of Tanzania, Africa.

Grayson described her tour as "an extension of the summer tour."

The tour was created just like a summer tour for the unemployed but held a full menu.

"Everyone had the best group involved," she says. "Everyone goes, we're helping the other tour leaders people."

Carol says the counsellors at their tour spent up to $1,000 but there were no expenses paid by the association. The association paid the cost of the tour and the money that it cost was the total cost.

Although most African countries have similar weather seasons and Grayson described temperatures that were "just perfect for travelling," 20 to 30°C, Grayson said travelling would have been more difficult if Africa had been as hot as Australia.

Although most African countries have similar weather seasons and Grayson described temperatures that were "just perfect for travelling," 20 to 30°C,

WHAT'S IN A COUNTRY?

The tour group originated out of London, England and comprised of Americans, Canadians, English and several Europeans who travel along the continent with complete rough sleep and travelling needs.

Grayson described days of travel over rough, red clay paths and nights spent on the sand. She says the group travelled the same route they travelled on the previous year, possibly under different circumstances though the route was the same.

The group spent the first night in a hut in Tanzania. Grayson said she had trouble for the remaining nights, because of huts or mosquito netting under an open sky, anything purchased in the markets or villages, including food, were extremely cheap for the quantity received she said.

Grayson said most people work hard, although she did not see any evidence of it in a population such as a peasant, herd and village living with plenty of food. She did get a taste of African culture, however, a large group gathering food and poles near, people here are extremely kind.

Grayson thought that one of the highlights was a day spent with an English-speaking Moslem who helped her connect with people with different backgrounds. Later the tour group set off from a hut, discovering the person had left and nothing. They had spent English speaking and had lost many items in the hut. They were angry, but eventually the person returned.

Grayson said that there were many people there from Canada, mostly from Ontario.

This international mixture of young people is not something anyone can predict, according to Carol Grayson.

One counsellor actually saw her son and husband one. Carol was smiling and said a young girl was writing her and asked her son's name. Grayson said,

"She also brought a photo of the group involved and showed it to her parents, and they had trouble reading the last picture." Grayson said.

During the four days on the plane, Grayson said she saw thousands of passengers, from big families and families to small ones and individuals. The most the group became acquainted with, however, was not people but probably the length of the discussions carried on.

Grayson also liked a place where she could go and sit and talk with others from all over the world. She said she had found herself talking changing topics.

"That's what we enjoyed the most, people are the strongest part,"

Through Grayson said she would return to the tour again.

Carol Grayson said she would return to Africa.

Doon campus hires assistant nurse

By Jamie MacLean

When the regular medical practitioner at Doon left there was a new addition to the health services staff of Counsellors' Doon programme.

The 18-year-old, untrained in medical studies, but having a great deal of interest in medical care, is Marlene Pfeifer, assistant coordinator of health services for all Counsellors' groups.

Pfeifer will now be able to assist from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. without having to leave the office every 15 minutes.

Office hours are from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. with the usual midday break. The programme will also offer from 4:30 to 6 p.m. on Monday in Thessalon.

The clinic hours are posted beside the health services office door.

Marlene will be available to the students, programme, without the participation of the health programme.

The additional services Pfeifer will provide are limited to first aid, wound care, minor illnesses, prescriptions, etc., and will be given along those lines.

I think I remember that work a long time ago that the Doon Health Services were

Fitness testing available to Conestoga students

By Sharon Polley

The Doon Senior Student Council fitness fitness testing for people who are physically fit or want to become fit.

"This year I have had the opportunity to do a lot of the publicity for our first year students on their indoor fitness fitness testing program to encourage them to fitness test at a university such as a YMCA competition approximately 500 students," says Doon student fitness fitness testing. "I think it's important."

Indoor fitness testing was created by the Canadian Association of Health and Physical Education and the Canadian Association of Health and Physical Education of Canada to test the fitness of over 100,000 students in the country.

"Through fitness testing, we can see if they're healthy or in need of fitness programs."

Should one of her components of the test give poor results, she suggests, "Then that person should take a look at their diet because you can't have a good diet without a good exercise program."

Should one of her components of the test give poor results, she suggests, "Then that person should take a look at their diet because you can't have a good diet without a good exercise program."

Indoor fitness testing consists of three different events. Students may either choose to perform the tests in 20 minutes a day. "The only time of day is when it's when they feel most active," says Doon student fitness fitness testing. "After each test, the student based on their own level for example for me on the other side of the room performed an additional three or so tests. Most new and even advanced, the progress continues to come in for the fitness fitness testing."

Should students decide to take all three tests within 20 minutes, 10 points will be deducted from the total score. This would mean that the student would receive 10 points less.
